

NEW MEXICO GAS COMPANY/EMERA

Peacock Myers, P.C. is pleased to announce that Deborah Peacock has been appointed to the Board of New Mexico Gas Company, an Emera Company. New Mexico Gas Company is the largest gas public utility in the State of New Mexico. Its parent company, Emera Incorporated, is a publicly traded energy and services company with utilities in Canada, Maine, Florida, Caribbean and New Mexico.

New Mexico Gas Company and Emera have established a $5 million economic development fund to fund innovation and entrepreneurship in New Mexico. They have already awarded several hundred thousand dollars to the City of Albuquerque's Innovation Central and to Arrowhead Center at New Mexico State University.

In addition, New Mexico Gas Company has committed $10 million to help communities who are unserved or underserved in the State of New Mexico; and $5 million for enlarging its pipeline to the New Mexico/Mexico border to enhance the State's ability to export gas to Mexico.

Deborah graduated from the Colorado School of Mines with a B.S. in Metallurgical Engineering and she is also a Registered Professional Engineer. She is a Harvard Law School graduate and has practiced intellectual property law for over 30 years. Her engineering and law backgrounds and experience are particularly useful for serving on the New Mexico Gas Company Board.

Deborah has always worked to improve our world economy through industry and innovation. Deborah is pleased to help New Mexico with her board service on the New Mexico Gas Company board.
