

Deborah Peacock Appointed to the Board of Regents at New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology (April 2011)

Deborah Peacock has been appointed by Governor Martinez as a Regent at the New Mexico Institute of Mining & Technology ("New Mexico Tech"). Her appointment was confirmed by the New Mexico Senate during the legislative session.

New Mexico Tech is located in Socorro, New Mexico, and offers degrees in engineering and science. Deborah fondly compares New Mexico Tech to the Colorado School of Mines, where she earned a B.S. in Metallurgical Engineering in 1978.

Deborah will attend Regent's meetings about once per month, and will, of course, continue to work full-time at Peacock Myers. She will be helping to ensure that New Mexico's college students at New Mexico Tech continue to receive a high quality education.

Congratulations, Deborah!
